

change in membrane potential evoked by an electric pulse is a function of membrane conductance: the higher the conductance, the lower the plateau. Accordingly, drug effects on channel conductance can be quantified.

subcellular fluorescence changes after